SULPHUR WORKERS IN UNIFORM

Half of the workers mining sulphur at our Grande Ecaille mine on the day of Pearl Harbor are now serving America in the uniforms of the armed forces.

To them, and to all the soldiers and sailors fighting so gallantly on the seas, we at home owe a debt of deep gratitude. One way we can help repay this debt is to make the return of these veterans to peacetime life as normal and happy as it can be.

Toward this end, Freeport has set aside a special reserve of $400,000 to make sure, just as far as we possibly can, that we shall have the resources to provide re-employment for our sulphur workers now in uniform.

THERE'S A GREAT DAY COMING!

When the drive of peace at last settles, when everything regains its even tenor, when all of us clasp hands once more and all is happiness again, we will all kneel in prayer to the Almighty for having lead our glorious armies on to Victory. And deep down in our hearts we will say a prayer for "Peace on earth, good will to all men."

Gone will be the thoughts of war, the heartaches, the trials, the hardships. Gone will be the rattle of machine gun fire, the bursting of shells, the cry of man in death.

No more will our boys wake up in the night screaming. No more will they sleep in bloody, muddy shell holes. No more will they come in contact with death, with poverty, destruction, starvation. For they will be at home and all will be peace and quiet.

It will be up to us to see that our returning heroes forget the grim months, the grim years spent overseas. It will be up to us to see that your boy relaxes in good clean fun. It will be up to us to see that he continues where he left off.

Yes, there's a great day a-coming! There will be much rejoicing, much celebrating. And a good deal of the celebrating will be done down at the Club Chateau. Here old friends will meet to huddle over a nice frosty bottle of beer and give vent to the feeling of joy and sing the songs their young hearts knew before they were called away.

Yes, there's a great day a-coming! A new world is in the making. A grand, glorious future lies ahead. And our young men and women are standing on the threshold to opportunity.

It is with sincerity in our hearts that we say—Congratulations! Best wishes! May the Almighty God grant each of you a safe and speedy return home.
