Changes made in nuisance laws

Ordinance allows for easier enforcement

By Karma Champagne
The Jeanerette Enterprise

A supplement to the current nuisance abatement ordinance recently approved by the board of aldermen will clear the way for easier enforcement of laws.

The ordinance will provide for problems with junk yards, tall grass, abandon vehicles and abandoned buildings to be addressed in a timely manner.

The board approved the change to the current ordinance at the request of the Jeanerette Housing Commission.

"This is going to make it easier for the city to enforce the laws for a cleaner community," said Alderman-at-large Kurt Myers who also serves as chairman of the commission.

Residents will have 15 days to comply or go before the board for an appeal for additional time.

Myers said the Jeanerette Housing Commission was formed to expand the housing inventory in the city of Jeanerette, but before that can be done there are problems that need to be addressed to create a cleaner city to entice new residents into the community.

Currently the city has a mechanism in place to address the problems, but it is not structured in one section to make it easy for enforcement, according to commission members.

The commission was originally formed at the request of Mayor Arthur Verret to work towards increasing the available housing in the city.

"I believe the whole board and the people of the community are glad the new ordinance was put into place. Everyone wants to have a clean community," said Myers.

"This is going to make it easier for the city to enforce the laws for a cleaner community,"

Alderman Kurt Myers

Updating cemetery records

BY KARMA CHAMPAGNE

A group of genealogy enthusiasts want to make sure local residents will always be able to locate the grave sites of their ancestors.

The group has been making their way across the area to several cemeteries to photograph and document each tomb in the cemetery to verify the name engraved on the headstone is in correlation with the cemetery records.

The group has already started working on the documentation of St. John Evangelist Cemetery.

"We want to make sure everything correlates with what is in the church records," said Julaine Schexnayder, a coordinator of the volunteer group.

"We are in hopes that all of the records will eventually be filed electronically to make it easier to find where someone is buried."

Schexnayder said in many instances the records are still

Partnership launches major disaster emergency guide

BY KARMA CHAMPAGNE
THE JEANERETTE ENTERPRISE

Participants in the National Hurricane Conference in New Orleans last week were able to view advance copies of a new level of local disaster preparedness, response and recovery in a hurricane guide for Iberia and Vermilion parishes.

The guide will serve as a template for similar projects for other areas of Louisiana and the United States.

The official introduction and beginning distribution of the Iberia Parish/Vermilion Parish Emergency Guide, was scheduled to day with a 9 a.m. event in Abbeville and at a 1 p.m. introduction at the St. Peter Street Branch Library in New Iberia.

The Guide is the result of a cooperative partnership between emergency response agencies, parish governments and AGL Resources.

A total of 24,000 copies of the guide, which is believed to be the most comprehensive focused pre-disaster planning and post response guide in the country, have been printed.

The 42-page guide combines traditional disaster preparation including emergency supplies check list, hurricane tracking chart, and directory of important contact numbers, with materials that reflect lessons learned from the 2005 hurricane season and valuable information that can be used immediately to lessen the impact of future natural disasters.

Walter H. Duck

Walter Harold Duck, 86, a resident of Franklin since 1967 died Tuesday, April 10, 2007, at the Franklin Health Care Center.

Mr. Duck was born in Wise County, Texas, on May 17, 1920. He married his wife, Genevieve Hayden, on April 10, 1943. He was a U.S. Navy veteran of World War II and served in the South Pacific. He worked 27 years in Satanta, Kan., Shamrock, Texas, and Aransas Pass, Texas, while working for the United Carbon Company. In 1952, he moved his family to New Iberia and constructed the carbon black plant near the Ivanhoe Canal. He then became the maintenance superintendent and ultimately the plant operating superintendent. In 1966, he purchased a partnership in Frees Construction Company and relocated to Franklin.

During his years with Frees he led many projects in the area. His favorite was the construction of the bell tower at Brownell Memorial Park in Morgan City. After retirement, he worked as a consultant for construction projects in South America and Brownsville, Texas.

Concerns voiced over police officer's

Editor:

I was reading the Jeanerette Enterprise and read a story where the board of aldermen, at the Monday, April 9 meeting went into executive session (closed) about a complaint lodged against a Jeanerette police officer and no action was taken.

The reason no action was taken was because the matter was handed over for investigation to the state police Monday long before the meeting.

I learned of this Monday morning. Even though I was told about it during the meeting, it did not come as a surprise.

As small as our community is we are not capable of handling our own affairs. This matter left from the Jeanerette Police Department looking into the matter; than the sheriff's department and now on to the state police.

This officer is still suppose to be on administrative duty. Why is he patrolling the streets?

If so, it just goes to show the citizens of Jeanerette we have no leadership from the top to the bottom.

For the young men and women of Jeanerette, be safe.

CEMETERY: Local volunteers needed

handwritten and in other instances the remains of the deceased have been relocated to other cemeteries.

In many cases, Schexnayder said the headstones are broken and deteriorated and it is not easy to identify the deceased, while others have no identification at all.

"This is a way that the genealogy group can be of help to supplement and update church records," she said.

In order to complete the project quicker, Schexnayder said the group is seeking volunteers who are willing to volunteer their time for a couple of hours a week over the next six to eight weeks.

The group will meet at St. John Evangelist Church at 9 a.m. Tuesday and will continue meeting every Tuesday at 9 a.m. until the task is completed.

"A volunteer doesn't have to commit to every week, it can be only a few hours," said Schexnayder.

Shirley Broussard, a member of the group said there are well over 3,000 tombs that need to be verified with records.

Records show the cemetery has a history dating back to June, 1879 when the first burial plot was purchased for six-year-old Alice Harris.

The group eventually hopes to see each tomb identified with a visual marking. For those who do not have an engraving or headstone, Schexnayder said an engraved metal plate can be purchased for $10. Anyone wanting more information on the program can call Schexnayder at 365-7667. Schexnayder said the group is just an informal association that has joined together to perform a service that is much needed.

"We need to get more of the locals in Jeanerette involved," she said.

The genealogy enthusiasts have already competed a similar project in St. Nicholas Catholic Church Cemetery in Patoutville and St. Peters Catholic Church Cemetery in New Iberia.

After the records are verified at St. John Evangelist Cemetery, the group will move on to a Catholic cemetery in Charenton to complete a similar project.

other). The show will be open for public viewing on Saturday from 2-4 p.m. and Sunday from 1-4 p.m.

GUIDE: Includes 48 pages information

Distribution of the guide will be under the direction of James L. "Jim" Anderson, director of the Iberia parish Office of Homeland Security and Emergency Preparedness and Vermilion parish director General Robert Leblanc.

Throughout the guide, residents will find valuable information gained from the experiences of the hurricanes and flooding that struck Louisiana in August and September of 2005.

Some of those include descriptions of types of insurance people need to have, dealing with inland flooding and hurricane-spawned tornadoes, health issues following a natural disaster incident, planning for evacuation and evacuating safely, dealing with extended stays in shelters and learning various types of assistance available following a natural disaster event.

The guide also contains Web sites where residents can learn more about weather conditions, flooding, disaster resources, generator safety, pet lodging options, storm recovery, home design and construction and a number of other related areas of emergency preparedness, response and recovery.

Include in the Iberia Parish/Vermilion guide are several pages of Disaster Mitigation Education.

The pages include actions that can be taken to reduce or eliminate long-term risks to life and property from future hazard events including information about building codes, basic steps to consider when elevating a building and the links to state and national disaster mitigation information resources.

Through 27 areas of content, the guide brings together, in one publication, important information from sources such as the Louisiana State Police Evacuation Map, Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals, FEMA, Disaster Contractor's Network, Partnership for Advancing Technology in Housing and the widely regarded Lafayette Utilities System Hurricane Handbook.

Funding for production and printing the guide is possible through the corporate support of AGL, Resources under the direction of David Jewell, vice president of Operations of Jefferson Island Storage and Hub.
