Candidates speak out at forum

BY ALICIA DUPLESSIS
SPECIAL TO THE JEANERETTE ENTERPRISE

Nearly 100 members of the Greater Iberia Chamber of Commerce attended a sold out "Eggs and Issues" breakfast Friday morning that gave members the opportunity to hear how candidates feel about issues facing the 3rd Congressional District.

The debate-style format was to begin with a panel of four candidates, three of which were present, who answered pre-prepared questions asked by moderator Will Chapman.

"We are here to listen to what everyone has to say. We are not here to campaign for or against anyone," Chapman said to the crowd.

Questions concerning how panelist felt about increasing minimum wage, the top three issues affecting the district and what they would do to solve those issues were addressed to panelists, state Sen. Craig Romero, R-New Iberia, U.S. Rep. Charlie Melancon, D-La., and Libertarian candidate James L. Blake Jr., each of whom had 90 seconds to answer.

Superintendent plans to retire

BY RANDY LOUIS
SPECIAL TO THE
JEANERETTE ENTERPRISE

Sonny Baudry Jr., who has served as superintendent of the Iberia parish School System since 1996, has announced, via letter to school board members, that he will retire from that position at the end of the current school year.

In the letter received by board members this past weekend, Baudry said,

"Although there is one year remaining on my current contract, I have come to the difficult decision to retire effective July 1, 2007. Since 13 of the 14 school board members have returned to office, there should be little difficulty in selecting a new superintendent.

"Please accept this decision without positive or negative comment. I will be forever grateful to the IPSB and this school system for all of the opportunities afforded me,"

Marked tombs identified as 'abandoned'

Group hoping to find descendants to meet at cemetery Sunday

After more than 100 years, the above-ground tombs in the Patoutville Cemetery are showing their age. Some are merely a depression in the ground or a pile of bricks while others are covered by vines or encroached by tree trunks.

Because of the state of disrepair on a number of tombs the finance committee of St. Nicholas Church has posted signs hoping to find someone to come forth and make a claim and take responsibility for repairs.

An informal gathering of interested parties will be held on at 2 p.m. Sunday at the cemetery. Anyone who would like to view the condition of the tombs, — especially those who recognize names in the list which accompanies this story — is invited to attend.

A group of interested citizens both from the local area as well as from out-of-state has banded together, mostly through the Internet, to help locate the present-day descendants of those who were interred there more than 120 years ago.

"It isn't an easy task," says Julaine Deare Schexnayder of New Iberia. "But using genealogy that has been gathered on local families over the years, we think we can identify and help to make a connection across the generations."

For example, one of the broken tombs belongs to a "Luc (sic) Landry" born in 1838, who died in 1905. "We have traced his descendants six generations and located family members still living in the Lydia community. Kip LaBiche is the great-great grandson of Luc," Schexnayder said. "We are willing to share all the names and dates we have on file to show the family members the connection."

Once descendants learn of a broken family tomb and see its poor condition, the next step will be to contact Bill Labiche who is chairman of the cemetery committee regarding the details of making the repairs.

Schexnayder belongs to an as-yet-unnamed group of people who became concerned when they heard about the notices being posted on broken tombs warning that if something isn't done to make repairs, there is a possibility that they would be deemed "abandoned." The church, which owns the land, would be able to reclaim the site by law.

Among the choices at their disposal would be removing the broken above-ground tombs and even moving the remains elsewhere. This would have to be done in accordance with Louisiana state law

Wiltz elected NACHC secretary in D.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Gary Wiltz, MD, CEO of Teche Action Clinic in Franklin, was recently elected Secretary of the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC). Ceremonies took place at NACHC's 37th Convention and Community Health Institute (CHI) in Chicago, Ill., where over two thousand of health center representatives from coast to coast assembled at the annual gathering. "I am very humbled by this honor and by your vote of confidence," said Wiltz. "Long ago I recognized the importance of being the voice of those we serve, the most vulnerable of populations. My goal is to fulfill the expansion initiative and double the number of people served by Community Health Centers, as mandated by the President of the United States. To accomplish this, we must work together with unity, leadership and strategic planning."

Wiltz has been an outspoken advocate for the medically underserved at the state and national level. He is a winner of the Robert Wood Johnson Community Health Leadership Award, and the NACHC 2005 "Grassroots Advocacy Hall of Fame." Dr. Wiltz has repeatedly testified before Congress about his efforts to eliminate diabetes and other chronic diseases among low-income populations in rural parishes he serves, just 106 miles southwest of New Orleans. More recently, Dr. Wiltz addressed a National Press Club Press Briefing in Washington, D.C., about the public health needs in Louisiana after Hurricane Katrina. His health center provided health care to hundreds of evacuees in the immediate days following the storm, as documented in the recently released NACHC report, "Legacy of a Disaster: Health Centers and Katrina, One Year Later."

NACHC is a national organization representing Community, Migrant and Homeless Health Centers which serve 15 million patients living in rural and urban communities around America and in the U.S. territories. No one is turned away for health care, regardless of their ability to pay.

Do you remember T. A. Labauve riding through Baldwin in his noisy old Model-T Ford? Well, his Great-Niece, Terri Pischoff Wuerthner, has written a cookbook/memoir about the Labauve family that is loaded with touching and humorous stories about relatives, friends, and neighbors in St. Mary Parish.

Join St. Mary Parish Library for a special program featuring Terri Wuerthner at 6 p.m. on Oct. 30 at the West End Branch Library in Baldwin. Wuerthner will give a brief talk and autograph copies of her new cookbook.

In a Cajun Kitchen is filled with 180 authentic Cajun recipes that were passed down to Wuerthner; a tenth generation Acadian, from her father, grandmother; and great-grandmother. Wuerthner spent ten years researching genealogy, family stories, recipes, and Cajun cultural and food traditions for the cookbook. Her work is illustrated beautifully through pictures by award winning photographer, Maren Caruso.

Wuerthner was the first culinary writer to receive a fellowship at the Writers' Colony at Dairy Hollow, the only writers' colony in the world designed specifically for the use of culinary writers. She has been writing about food for over 20 years.

Wuerthner's work has appeared in Bon Appetit, Better Homes and Gardens, Cooking Light, Mademoiselle, The Washington Post and The San Francisco Examiner. She has also co-authored volumes one and two of Food for Life: The Cancer Prevention Cookbook and Everyday Favorites of Sonoma County.

Wuerthner currently lives in northern California where she teaches Cajun and southern cooking at Bauman College.

Join us on Oct. 30 for this fascinating program. Bring along a recipe to be eligible to win a door prize. This program is open to the public free of charge. This program has been made possible through a grant from the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, a state affiliate of Book-Sale-on-the-Bayou in New Iberia offers books and more

Where can you find romance for a dollar adventure for 50 cents? At the annual Friends of the Library's used book sale in New Iberia. Whether you are stocking up on mysteries for bedtime reading or looking for an inexpensive way to purchase books for your children, the Friends' Book-Sale-on-the-Bayou is the place to shop in November.

There will be thousands of previously owned books to choose from at the Friends used book sale which begins with a special Friends Preview Sale Friday, Nov. 3, at Cyr Gates Community Center, 300 Parkview Drive in New Iberia from 5:30-8 p.m. New memberships, $5 per individual or $7 per family for the year, will be accepted at the door.

The sale for the general public will begin Saturday, Nov. 12 from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and conclude Sunday, Nov. 5 from 1:30-5:30 p.m.

According to Joe Norton, book sale chair, the Friends have been accumulating, sorting and pricing books all year and now have thousands of books for sale with prices beginning at 25 cents.

"Each year it is amazing to see the wide range of books that are donated to the Friends for the sale — westerns, cookbooks, gardening books, encyclopedias, dictionaries, children's books, romances and hundreds of novels," Norton said. Cheryl Braud, assistant director of the Iberia Parish Library, said the annual Friends book sale features some rare book finds for the discerning collector.

"We have vintage cookbooks, a first edition Robert Frost, some Dickens, something for history buffs and genealogists, and a sampling of collective children's books. Even in our collectibles, we have something for everyone," Braud said.

In addition to book items, the Friends will be auctioning off a bit of New Iberia history — giant flat iron baskets that were used for years at Trappey's in the canning of pickled okra.

Susan Hester Edmunds, community relations director for the Iberia Parish Library, said the baskets make great planters for the lawn or patio.

"The people at B & G Foods donated all their canning baskets to the Friends of the Library and eight of them are now beautiful planters in front of the St. Peter and Parkview libraries," Hester Edmunds said.

The Book Sale on the Bayou is the Friends of the Library primary source of income, Miles said and with the proceeds generated from this event, the library is able to offer to the public at no charge, informative programs.

For more information about the book sale, call the Main Library at 364-7024.

Unidentified Graves: There are other graves which have deteriorated to the point where all that remains is a pile of bricks or a depression in the ground. Perhaps identification can be made by knowledge of the tombs nearby: for example, a broken brick tomb next to that of Alexander Gary or another one near Ben Hebert. All of the above, both those named as well as those unknown, have been marked with small printed signs on wooden stakes.

such as giving public notice of the church's intentions for a year in monthly newspaper advertisements.

So far no ads have been published, but according to Labiche, there are plans to start doing so soon.

In addition to Schexnayder, others working toward the goal of finding descendants include Bryan Hebert of the Lydia-Patoutville area and Shirley Broussard of New Iberia, both genealogy hobbyists.

They learned about the situation from Don Louviere of Houston who began an inventory of the Patoutville cemetery earlier this year as a personal project because he had family members interred there. After photographing the tombs, which were in poor condition, he asked another former Iberian, Stanley LeBlanc, now of Dallas to put the pictures on his Website, <http://thecajuns.com>. Later Nancy Armentor Lees used her computer search talents to help locate descendants from her home in Virginia.

"This cemetery is a treasure to the first families who settled in this area," said Bryan Hebert, who has a database of hundreds of families such as his own Heberts as well as Derouens, Louvieres and others which include some of the oldest names in the cemetery. He adds that the first St. Nicholas Church was founded at a site near the cemetery on Enterprise Plantation in the 1800s.

The next nearest Catholic church at the time was in Charenton.

Notices of the meeting next Sunday, along with a list of the nearly 50 names found on the designated tombs, were distributed to parishioners of both St. John the Evangelist Church in Jeanerette as well as St. Nicholas Church in Lydia to inform people of the problem and invite them to learn more by visiting the site.

"We want to use this time of year, around All Saints' Day and All Souls' Day, to remind people of their obligation to their ancestors," said Schexnayder.

She suggests visitors on Sunday bring a camera, paper and pencil, and a list of names of one's grandparents and others as far back as is easily known.

"We can help you to locate your family tombs as well as give you more information about your family members, in some cases going back as many as 10 generations," Schexnayder said. "You can take it from there."

Head-on crash kills Jeanerette woman

BY JEFF MOORE
SPECIAL TO THE
JEANERETTE ENTERPRISE

A Jeanerette woman was killed in a head-on collision Thursday on South Lewis Street.

Elaine Stamos, 36, was pronounced dead at the scene of the crash, which happened at 7:20 a.m. between U.S. Route 90 and the Port of Iberia.

According to Louisiana State Police Troop I, Stamos was traveling north in the southbound lane of Lewis Street as a van was traveling in the opposite direction.

According to state police, the driver of the van, Carolyn Nevis, 37, of Sunset, saw Stamos' car in her lane and brought her van to a stop.

Stamos continued north and struck Nevis' van head-on. Stamos was not restrained.

Nevis, who was wearing her seat belt, suffered minor injuries. She was transported to Iberia Medical Center.

The accident was the 67th fatal crash of the year investigated by Troop I. Seventy-two people have died in those crashes.

RETIRE: He'll be missed said Baudry in the letter.

The board will vote at its Nov. 1 meeting on whether or not to accept the superintendent's retirement. Baudry is under contract with the board until June 30, 2008.

Baudry declined to comment on his plans this morning. The superintendent explained that the matter has yet to be approved by the board.

The announcement comes on the heels of a clash between Baudry and several board members regarding the construction of a new library at Anderson Street Middle School. The board voted 8-6 last week to approved the library and the superintendent verbally lashed out at some of those members who voted against the proposal.

IPSB president Robbie LeBlanc confirmed Monday the letter was sent this past weekend and said he is going to miss Baudry.

"I have worked closely with Mr. Baudry for the last 17 years as superintendent and assistant superintendent, LeBlanc said. "The library situation was the straw that broke the camel's back and I really hate to lose him. Currently we have a lot of projects going on in the school system and I hate to lose his expertise. He is really going to be missed by a lot of people."

FORUM: Nov. 7 election

"We have given nice tax breaks to wealthy people while we won't even give a minimum wage increase to working people. If you can't take care of the needs of the people in this country first then we in this district will have just as bad a problem as everyone else in the world," said Melancon.

Romero said that he did not see the current amount of minimum wage as an issue, as did Blake, who said that he did not think increasing minimum wage is the answer, but would none the less support it.

The candidates also gave their position on the off-shore revenue sharing legislation currently being considered by congress. Romero left Melancon to defend the reason he waited to sign a bill concerning the offshore revenue sharing bill by Congressman Bobby Jindal.

"When Jindal introduced his bill in January, and by the end of April, he had 72 co-sponsors. Six out of seven of the Louisiana delegation was signed onto Bobby Jindal's bill, Charlie Melancon was not."

Many of the issues concerning the free trade agreement and off-shore interests went unaddressed by Blake who told the audience that he had not researched either of those topics and had no way to give an adequate response.

VOTING: Many races

Congressional election will bring out a large number of early voters.

"I think our turnout is going to be lower than it was for September. In most of the parish, that's all they're going to have. It's usually the local races that bring people out," she said. Holcombe added that the new provision for early voting allows everyone participate without a valid excuse has increased the turnout in the last election slightly.

"Our early voting has picked up somewhat. The fact that it's a Tuesday election, I don't know if we'll do anymore that we did in September. You never know," she said.

In St. Mary Parish, some voters will see runoff elections on their ballots. Benjamin Grimm and Willie J. Scott, both Democrats will face each other again for the Justice of the Peace in Ward 1. On the St. Mary Parish School Board, the District 5 candidates Ginger Smith Griffin, Republican and C.A. "Gus" Lipari, Democrat will continue their quest for the seat.

St. Martin Parish voters in District 2 will decide whether Lisa Nelson, Democrat, or Zelma "Zee" Broussard, Republican, will hold the district's parish council seat.

In St. Martin Parish School Board District 2, Wanda Hypolite Babin, Other, and Jimmy "Little Jimmy" Charles, Democrat will face each other in a runoff election.

St. Martin Parish voters in School Board District 3 will choose between Aaron Flegeance and Edmonia Lee Jackson, both Democrats. The school board seat in District 8 will also be determined.

Voters in Vermilion Parish will vote for their choice to hold the 7th Congressional District seat.

In that race, incumbent Charles W. Boustany Jr., Republican, will face Mike Stagg, Democrat.

The Chief of Police race in Erath will also be determined. Gerald Hebert will face fellow Democrat Guy Nerren for the office.

Gerard Baudoin and Angela Faulk also will face off again for the Vermilion Parish School Board seat in District B.
